The Dance of the Sandhill Crane: Extraordinary Life of This Truly Ancient Species

The Dance of the Sandhill Crane - Jeff Lange - documents the extraordinary life of this truly ancient species. You will experience courtship dancing, chick hatching, life around the marsh and beyond, and intense sibling rivalry, a significant cause of chick mortality. This was filmed around Petoskey, Michigan.

Jeff is the founder of LoonCorps, an organization that seeks to restore loon-breeding lakes and territories throughout Northern Michigan. He works with volunteers who monitor and report on the success of nesting loons, along with addressing nesting problems and threats facing loons in Michigan. Filming and producing "The Uncommon Loon: The Seasonal Journey of One Loon Family" led Jeff to create this film about the crane family that overlaps the loons' habitat. Jeff is a singer/songwriter who plays at various music venues throughout Michigan, and is fond of kayaking Ontario's Goulais and Agawa Rivers.
